

Travel Insurance

Travel insurance provides protection against the impact of something going wrong when you are on holiday or travelling. Travel insurance is offered by a range of different providers including many airlines. Shop around for the product that best covers your specific needs.

A good insurance policy should provide cover for:

- Missed flight departures / connections;
- Cancellation or restriction of your holiday caused by an unexpected event, e.g. illness;
- Illness, injury or death while you are away;
- Repatriation (getting you back home);
- Loss, theft or damage to your belongings or luggage (many policies will not cover items lost from check-in luggage);
- Liability for accidents to others;
- If the airline goes out of business;
- Natural disasters, natural events e.g. volcanic ash cloud and severe weather;
- Political instability; and
- Security risks.

If you plan to fly from an airport in the Republic of Ireland check with your insurance provider that your policy covers you for delayed or missed departures from these airports.

Exclusions

It is also important to know what the policy doesn't cover. Some common exclusions are:

- Travel disruption caused by natural disaster, volcanic ash, civil unrest or terrorism may not be included;
- Claims for a pre-existing medical condition or illness at the time of taking out your policy that has not been declared;
- Alcohol and drug related incidents;
- Missing valuables from check-in luggage; and

Global Health Insurance Card (GHIC) and travel insurance

If you are travelling to Europe, it is vital that you have both a Global Health Insurance Card (GHIC)* and travel insurance. The GHIC is available, free of charge, to all UK residents and allows travellers to access healthcare in most European countries at a reduced cost or sometimes free of charge. It is not an alternative to travel insurance. However there are many things that are not covered by the GHIC such as:

- getting you back to the UK (repatriation)
- private medical treatment
- dental treatment in some countries

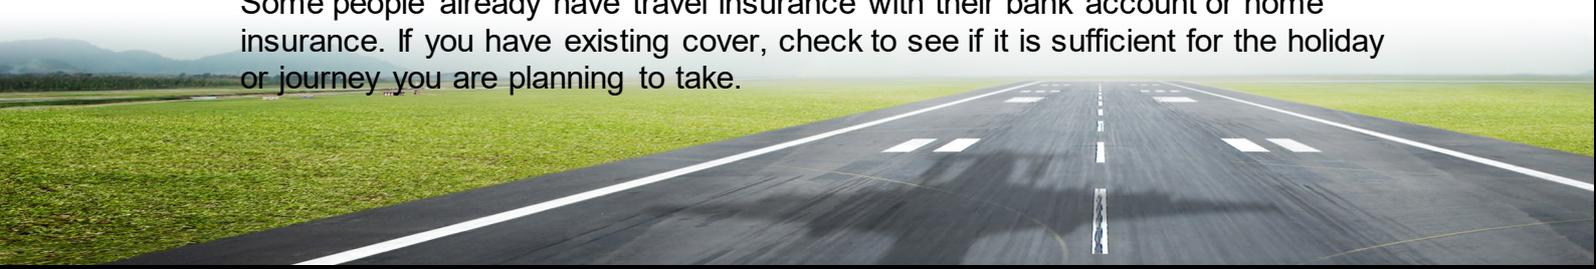

*The GHIC has replaced the European Health Insurance Card (EHIC). Your EHIC will still be valid in the EU until it expires, after which you can replace it with a GHIC.

How do I get an GHIC?

You can apply online at <https://www.nhs.uk/using-the-nhs/healthcare-abroad/apply-for-a-free-uk-global-health-insurance-card-ghic/>. You should apply at least 2 weeks before travel to make sure the card arrives on time.

Already Covered?

Some people already have travel insurance with their bank account or home insurance. If you have existing cover, check to see if it is sufficient for the holiday or journey you are planning to take.
